Stadden Letters of Rosewell, ancestral home of the Page family, the most noted house in historic Gloucester county. An open fire left burning all night in the dining room is supposed to have caused it. Judge Fielding Lewis Taylor and his wife and daughter, who occupied the mansion, escaped half dressed. Some silver, books and portraits were saved, but much of value, including Sir Peter Lely's portrait of Speaker Augustine Warner and the ancient Abingdon parish register, were lost—a shock to many families.

AUGUSTA, GA., DECLINES CANNOT TRAIN MEN OFFERS OF OUTSIDE AID

City Rapidly Returning to Normal After Big Fire of Wednesday Night.

AUGUSTA, Ga., March 25 .- Augusta s rapidly returning to normal after the big fire of Wednesday night. The relief work, through a public welfare I TELLS OF HIS TROUBLES committee, has been thoroughly sysbeen raised to care for those in dis-The forty tents placed in May Park, with over 200 cots, have not had a single occupant, the relatives and friends of homeless people having taken them in temporarily.

Augusta citizens have decided that if $50,000 will be sufficient for relief work the city will take care of the situation itself and not ask for outside aid. The relief fund is growing rapidly. Representative Vinson's offer to endeavor to get federal assistance was declined, Mayor Littleton expressing the appreciation of the city, but stating that he did not think the money would be necessary.
